AUDITOR LAWSHE'S CRITICISM. Does Not Approve Post Office Bookkeeping in the Philippines.

A letter from A. L. Lawshe, auditor of the Philippines, has been received at the War Department, and certain portions sent to the Postmaster General for his information. The letter relates largely to the methods of keeping accounts, which are not approved by Mr. Lawshe, and which have not been in accordance with the forms prescribed. Mr. Lawshe took four expert clerks when he went to the Philippines, it is expected they will be straightened out. It is stated at the department that there is no intimation of any fraud or wrongdoing. but that simply a system of bookkeeping is in vogue which is lacking the business methods necessary to secure the best results. The transmission of this letter to the Postmaster General gave rise to reports that irregularities and frauds had developed in the Philippine postal service. Postmaster General Smith gave an emphatic denial to these reports. "The accounts as filed here," said Mr. Smith, "are certainly ample. They account satisfactorily for everything. As to irregularities, there is absolutely no word of foundation for such a Not long since one of the most experienced inspectors in the postal service was sent to the Philippines, and he made a thorough inspection of every detail of the work there. combustion of hay, written by C. F. Langworthy of the Department of Agriculture, has been published by direction of Secretary Wilson. Interest is given to this by the fact that flames mysteriously broke out in a mass of hay stored in the hold of the United States transport Rawlins at New York recently, Mr. Langworthy says: "Fires which are reported to be caused by the spontaneous combustion of hay are by no means rare. While some of them are doubtless of an incendiary origin, others are really due to the cause assigned. "It is well known that when moist hay is stored under favorable conditions fermentation takes place, which may produce a considerable amount of heat. According to recent investigations made in Germany fire to the hay. Under suitable conditions some of the organic matter of the hay is oxidized by the oxygen of the air. Carbon dioxid and water are produced. The water moistens the hay and the moistened material ferments. Fermentation produces car-bon dioxid, water and small amounts of other compounds. Heat also is produced. "The fermentation is more active if the material is moistened at the beginning. However, the water produced by the oxidation of the materials is sufficient to start it. This fermentation produces a temperature of about 132.8 degrees Fahrenheit. At this temperature a second and more violent oxidation takes place and the temperature rises to about 194 degrees Fahrenheit. Other processes then take place which char the material and cause a slow rise of tempera-ture to 266 degrees Fahrenhelt. When this idly. All these processes destroy at least half of the material present. Theoretically the temperature may rise to 374 degrees Fahrenheit. According to the tests made clover hay will become ignited at 302-392 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Spontaneous combustion is indicated by the hay becoming darker in color until it is finally black, by a sooty odor and by smoke irritating to the eyes. The ash of the urned hay has a characteristic grayishwhite appearance and feels like sand. The hay is surrounded by a layer of charred but not burned material, which is

Refused to Indict the Collector.

The civil service commission has been advised that the grand jury at El Paso, Tex., has refused to return an indictment against Moses Dillon, collector of customs at that point, who had been charged with soliciting and receiving contributions from federal employes for campaign purposes. J. J. Kemp, a civil service examiner, went from Washington to El Paso to testify be-fore the grand jury, but the case had been disposed of before he arrived in that city. The charge against Dillon of abstracting civil service examination questions, which he was alleged to have furnished certain applicants who took the civil service examination for entrance in the custom service, was ignored by the United States commis-

METHOD DESCRIBED BY E. R.

Testimony Before the Industrial Com mission-Attitude of Dealers and Labor Toward Consolidation

Mr. E. R. Chapman, banker and broker, of New York was before the industrial commission at the Bliss building yesterday afternoon to testify concerning the financing of industrial and railway corporations. Mr. Chapman has been prominently connected with the financing of the Brooklyn Gas Company, the Continental Tobacco Company, Pittsburg Coal Company, American Smelting Company, Pittsburg Brewing Company, American Smelting and Refining Company, Cleveland and Sandusky Brewing Company, Empire Steel and Iron Company and others.

Speaking of the consolidation of smelting companies, he said the owners of these concerns had long felt the evils of competition and sought some method to avoid it. It the case of the American Smelting and Refining Company, he said, that company chiefly operates on silver and lead ores, though it does include gold, but not copper, in its works. The options given on individual plants when the consolidation was secured in 1898 were on a cash basis. The American Smelting and Refining Company issued $27,400,000 of 7 per cent cumulative stock and $27,400,000 of common stock for the plants that were taken in the combina-Working capital to the amount of $6,500,000 was placed in the treasury of the company. financing a great corporation through a consolidation except in stock. They do not receive money or any given amount of stock for themselves. They are given a percentage of the common stock, and they pay all the expenses of the reorganization from it, their own profit being what is left. In 1900 the net earnings of the American Smelting and Refining Company amounted to $4,500,000. The combination had saved $5,000,000 in freight rates alone by the smelting of ores at the mines. Mr. Chapman stated that the combination

CHANCE FOR OUR MANUFACTURERS

Exhibit to Be Made of Fire Extinguishing Apparatus at Berlin. It is to be feared that American manufacturers of fire-preventing and extinguishing apparatus are going to lose a rare and valuable opportunity through their unaccountable indifference to the special international exposition of that whole class of appliances and methods which is to be held at Berlin during the coming summer. So states Consul General Frank Mason at Frankfort in a recent communication to the Department of State calling attention to what he regards as unwise disinterestededness on the part of American builders.

In view of the success of the American exhibit of this sort at Paris last year, and the well-known pre-eminence of American fire brigades and their equipment, the man-agers of the Berlin exposition have been

Mr. Mason points out the unequaled opportunity for American builders to show their products before the assembled experts and municipal officers of Europe, who, he says, are many years behind Americans in all that relates to fire extinguishing, and will go to Berlin to see, test and order the best that the world has to offer. "It may be many years," the consul general continues, "before such another exhibition will be held at a capital of central Europe, and the opportunity now lost will certain

In order to especially facilitate American exhibits, arrangements have been re-cently made by which all machinery and apparatus intended for exhibition shall not only be admitted free of duty, but shall be taken from New York to Hamburg and Bremen and returned after the exp by German steamship lines free of charge for freight and handling. The only expense from the American point of ship-ment will be the ordinary railway freight rate from Bremen or Hamburg to Berlin. The exhibit will open about May 15, and continue until the end of August.
